

3-12-2019

Editor's Note

Caden Hayes

Washington and Lee University School of Law

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarlycommons.law.wlu.edu/crsj>

Part of the Civil Rights and Discrimination Commons, and the Human Rights Law Commons

Recommended Citation

Caden Hayes, Editor's Note, 25 Wash. & Lee J. Civ. Rts. & Soc. Just. ().

Available at: <https://scholarlycommons.law.wlu.edu/crsj/vol25/iss1/3>

This Prefatory is brought to you for free and open access by the Washington and Lee Journal of Civil Rights and Social Justice at Washington & Lee University School of Law Scholarly Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Washington and Lee Journal of Civil Rights and Social Justice by an authorized editor of Washington & Lee University School of Law Scholarly Commons. For more information, please contact christensena@wlu.edu.

Editor's Note

The Washington & Lee Journal of Civil Rights & Social Justice proudly supports scholarship that discusses all perspectives. The Journal provides top legal commentary on all ranges of legal issues in the world of civil rights. We are confident that this Journal's contribution to the study in this field makes a difference.

The articles featured in this edition reflect civil rights issues not only domestically, but abroad. We are excited to present an article discussing civil rights attorneys in China and an article highlighting sexual harassment law in France. We are also thrilled to present an article discussing post-employment obligations and an article utilizing the tv show The Wire to conduct a critical analysis of United States society.

This issue also includes four student notes written by members of the 2018–2019 editorial board. One of these notes, entitled Bytes Bite: Why Corporate Data Breaches Should Give Standing to Affected Individuals, won the revered Louise A. Halper Award for Best Student Note. That said, each of these notes are well thought out and provide insightful legal discussion. They each deserve a read.

I would like to personally thank every member on the 2018–2019 Editorial Board for their perseverance and hard work in putting this book together. In addition, the Journal is incredibly grateful for the continued support of Lisa Gearheart, Dean Mason, Professor Shaughnessy, and all of those who value the Journal and its mission.

Please enjoy this issue.

Caden Hayes
Editor-in-Chief